

Russia-Ukraine War

NICOLE TUNG FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES

Political Infighting Hampers Ukraine's Efforts to Avert Energy Crisis

Top energy officials have fallen and key energy policy decisions have been delayed because of political calculations, lawmakers and experts say, costing Ukraine valuable time in preparing for winter.

2d ago By CONSTANT MÉHEUT

DAVID GUTTENFELDER FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES

Russia Is Clawing Back Land Taken by Ukraine This Summer

Moscow's forces have been recapturing some villages and land taken in a Ukrainian incursion into Russia. The advances could undermine Kyiv's hopes of pushing Russia to the negotiating table.

3d ago By CONSTANT MÉHEUT

NICOLE TUNG FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES

Rise of the Dragons: Fire-Breathing Drones Duel in Ukraine

Drones are getting another new twist: Soldiers attach canisters to them to create weapons capable of spitting out molten metal that burns at 4,400 degrees.

October 12, 2024 By MARC SANTORA

VIA HROMADSKE

Ukrainian Journalist Has Died in Russian Captivity, Ukraine Says

Viktoria Roshchina, a 27-year-old reporter, had been detained by the Russian authorities after reporting from occupied territories in Ukraine.

2d ago By CONSTANT MÉHEUT

NICOLE TUNG FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES

September Was Deadly Month for Russian Troops in Ukraine, U.S. Says

More than 600,000 Russian troops have been killed or wounded since the war began in 2022.

October 11, 2024 By ERIC SCHMITT

NICOLE TUNG FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES

Ukraine's Parliament Approves Biggest Tax Increase of War to Support the Army

The authorities are resorting to a politically unpopular move as they scramble to raise funds for the grueling military effort against Russia.

October 10, 2024 By CONSTANT MÉHEUT

HAIYUN JIANG FOR THE NEW YORK TIMES

Meeting of Western Leaders on Ukraine Is Postponed, a Setback for Kyiv

A top-level gathering in Germany intended to show support for Ukraine was put off after President Biden canceled his trip to deal with Hurricane Milton.

October 11, 2024 By STEVEN ERLANGER, CONSTANT MÉHEUT and ZOLAN KANNO-YOUNGS

EVGENIY MALOLETKA/ASSOCIATED PRESS

After Key Town Falls in Ukraine's East, Russian Forces Push Into Another

Russian troops have now entered Toretsk, a strategic hilltop city, and are pressing with assaults elsewhere in the Donetsk region.

October 9, 2024 By CONSTANT MÉHEUT

ALINA SMUTKO/REUTERS

Missile Hits Near Ukrainian Air Base as Russia Expands Air Attacks

The strike is part of a broader campaign of air assaults by Moscow aimed at degrading Ukraine's military infrastructure and wearing down its air defenses.

October 7, 2024 By CONSTANT MÉHEUT

Latest

Search

Oct. 16, 2024

Zelensky Pitches His 'Victory Plan' to Ukrainian Lawmakers

The proposal would rely heavily on increased Western assistance. So far, it has drawn a lukewarm response from Ukraine's allies.

Leer en español

Oct. 16, 2024

North Korea, Longing for Battle Experience, Eyes Ukraine

Helping Russia in the war is an opportunity for North Korea to test its new weapons, and Ukrainian officials say the North's troops are also gaining direct battle experience.

阅读简体中文版 · 閱讀繁體中文版

Oct. 14, 2024

The Wildly Subversive Music of Soviet Ukraine

An archival label in the United States was going to release a huge compilation of records from the U.S.S.R. Then Russia invaded Ukraine.

Oct. 11, 2024

Inside Donald Trump's Shadow Presidency

In the years since he left the White House, former President Donald J. Trump has remained a force in international politics, meeting with a number of foreign leaders and operating out of his Mar-a-Lago estate in Florida.

Oct. 6, 2024

In Ukraine, Small, Fluffy Dogs Offer Wartime Comfort

Dog ownership has surged over the past two years as people seek companionship. In Kyiv, Yorkies, poodles and bichons frisés now rule the streets.

Oct. 5, 2024

Ukraine's Donbas Strategy: Retreat Slowly and Maximize Russia's Losses

The idea is to use rope-a-dope tactics, letting Russian forces pound away until they have exhausted themselves. It's far from clear if the Ukrainian strategy will succeed.

Oct. 4, 2024

‘Mom, I Want to Live’: A Young Girl Battles War and Cancer

Sonya Liakh was diagnosed with eye cancer at age 2. After Russia’s invasion of Ukraine disrupted her treatment, her family faced a desperate struggle.

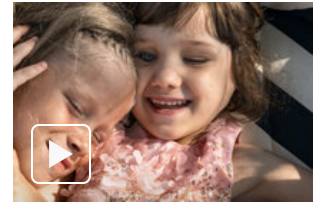

Oct. 4, 2024

TIMES | VIDEO

The War’s Toll on Sick Ukrainian Children

Sonya, a young Ukrainian girl, was being treated for eye cancer. Then Russia invaded Ukraine. Lynsey Addario, a photographer on assignment for The New York Times who has covered every major war and humanitarian crisis of her generation, tells Sonya’s story.

Oct. 3, 2024

CRITIC’S PICK

‘Intercepted’ Review: The Awful Intimacy of the War in Ukraine

In leaked phone calls home, Russian soldiers grapple with the war they’re waging. This new documentary sets the calls’ swagger and anguish against images of the invasion’s devastation.

Oct. 2, 2024

How Russians Serve the State: In Battle, and in Childbirth

President Vladimir Putin is throwing ever more resources at two interlocked priorities: recruiting more soldiers and encouraging bigger families.

Leer en español